ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a system and method for traffic analysis. Embodiments can be used to detect malevolent network activity such as worms, viruses, denial of service attacks, and 5    unauthorized network routing. Upon detecting the activity, steps can then be taken to halt the spread and/or remove the malevolent network activity, thereby adding protection from such activity to the network. Other network activity of interest can also be detected.